New York Medical College's 15-credit online Advanced Certificate in Emergency Management is designed for first responders, the working professional who is responsible for the mitigation, preparedness, response and recovery of its organization, as well as for college graduates interested in entering this emerging field.

Housed in the Center for Disaster Medicine, this advanced certificate program allows students to study at their own pace and complete the program in as little as one year. The program can be taken independently or as part of a Master of Public Health (M.P.H.) degree. It provides critical theoretical and practical concepts in order to work in the field of emergency management including health care, emergency medical services, fire, law enforcement and other public and private sectors.

Our faculty are recognized emergency management practitioners with decades of experience at the local, regional, national and international level, with the ability to integrate classroom theory with real case studies from their distinguished careers.
